Course Description: “The 1st Arkadi M. Rywlin International Pathology Slide Seminar Symposium in Anatomic Pathology” will combine the traditional format of formal lectures with case presentations and in-depth discussion of recent advances and problems in the interpretation of pathologic material. All the main subjects of practically oriented modern diagnostic anatomic pathology will be covered, including surgical pathology, electron microscopy, and cytopathology. Disease areas: Head & Neck, Thorax, Gastrointestinal Tract, Uro-Genital Tract, Kidney, Hemato-Lymphoid Organs, Soft Tissue & Bone, Breast, & others. The participants will be mailed a complete set of at least 45 glass slides and case histories focusing on common and uncommon pathologic conditions that may pose difficulties for diagnosis. The conference format will allow the participants with the opportunity to review the case histories and microscopic slides, formulate a diagnosis, and discuss strategy for arriving at the correct diagnosis with the faculty. Audience interaction and participation will be encouraged. A vast exhibition of nearly one hundred illustrated Quiz Cases will be also presented. The course is to be conducted under the auspices of both the Italian Society of Anatomic Pathology and Diagnostic Cytopathology (SIAPEC) and the International Academy of Pathology (IAP) - Italian Division.

About the “Arkadi M. Rywlin (AMR) International Pathology Slide Seminar Club”: The AMR International Pathology Slide Seminar was inaugurated by Dr. Saul Suster in September 1990 at the Mount Sinai Medical Center of Greater Miami (Florida, USA), the home of the late Arkadi M. Rywlin, former Director of Pathology at that institution. The group is primarily composed of Academic Surgical Pathologists from all 5 continents. The purpose of the club is to exchange histologic glass slides of interesting or unusual conditions among its members, followed by an exchange of information and opinions involving those cases in an informal and collegial setting. More than 500 cases have been circulated to date. Selected cases are currently being published along with the comments of the club members in the journal Advances in Anatomic Pathology. The exchange of cases in the club stimulates a critical and often iconoclastic approach to the study of problems in pathology, fostering a free exchange of ideas in the spirit of scientific inquiry that characterized Dr. Rywlin's approach to pathology.

For a short overview of Dr. Rywlin's career see: Suster S, Allen PW. Selected cases from the Arkadi M. Rywlin International Pathology Slide Seminar Club. Adv Anat Pathol vol. 8:21-22, 2001.

Location of the Course: The course will take place in San Giovanni Rotondo, Italy. San Giovanni Rotondo is a small town of nearly 25,000 inhabitants located at 567 meters above the sea level in the province of Foggia, in the southeastern part of Italy. San Giovanni Rotondo is well-known as the home of Padre Pio (1887-1968), a cappuccino friar who founded the "Casa Sollievo della Sofferenza", currently one of the main Italian medical institutes for research and treatment of disease. The church of "Santa Maria delle Grazie" which houses Padre Pio's tomb is visited yearly by millions of devout followers and pilgrims. San Giovanni Rotondo is located in the region of the Gargano, the "spur" of Italy, a popular tourist destination featuring forests, lakes, mountains, and beautiful beaches. Ruins dating back to the Romans, Longobards, Swabians and Angevins are located in the heart of this region. San Giovanni Rotondo is located approximately 2.5 hours from Naples and 3.5 hours from Rome by train.

Official Languages: English and Italian. A simultaneous translation will be provided.

CME Accreditation (valid for Italian participants only): an application has been made to the Italian Ministry of Health.

Registration: Registration fee of 300 USD (or the equivalent in Euro) includes attendance to the course, a set of glass slides to keep and the course syllabus. Coffee breaks

A 10% reduction is offered to all members of the IAP and members of any national Pathology Society as well as to residents and fellows in training. Participation is limited to 200 registrants, therefore the acceptance is on first-come first-serve basis.

By plane: Bari-Palese is the nearest Italian airport to San Giovanni Rotondo. Bari-Palese is linked with the other main international Italian airports (i.e. Naples, Rome, Milan, Venice, Florence,) by frequent domestic flights. To get to San Giovanni Rotondo use public transportation (train) or rent a car.

By train: Foggia railway station is the suggested terminal site where to get to. Bus services from Foggia to San Giovanni Rotondo are available in the plaza facing the main entrance of Foggia railway station (distance from Foggia to San Giovanni Rotondo: 40 km).

By car: From Bari: Take motorway A14 towards Foggia-Pescara to exit Foggia, and then drive towards Manfredonia-Gargano-San Giovanni Rotondo. From Naples: Take motorway A16 towards Bari to exit Candela and then follow the signs to Foggia-Manfredonia/Gargano-San Giovanni Rotondo. From Rome: Take motorway A1 towards Naples, and then (near Naples) take motorway A16 (now: follow direction from Naples: see above); alternative route from Rome is: motorway A25 towards Pescara, and then motorway A14 towards Bari to exit either San Severo or Foggia. From San Severo: drive towards San Marco in Lamis-San Giovanni Rotondo. From Foggia: drive towards Manfredonia-Gargano-San Giovanni Rotondo. From NorthEast (Milano-Venezia Bologna): Take motorway A14 towards Ancona-Pescara-Bari to exit either San Severo or Foggia. From both San Severo and Foggia: see above. From NorthWest (Turin-Genoa-Florence): Drive towards Rome (see above) or Bologna (see above). From SouthEast: Take motorway A14 towards Bari-Foggia-Pescara to exit Foggia (see above). From SoutWest: First take motorway A3 towards Naples, and then take motorway A16 towards Bari to exit Candela (see above).
